Educational Psychology Literacy Conference: Improving Outcomes for Pupils with Literacy Difficulties

Monday 18th June 2018

Buckfast Abbey Conference Centre, Buckfast

09:30 - 16:00

 #BabcockLiteracy

Overview

This conference will provide an invaluable opportunity to update knowledge and improve provision in schools to meet the needs of children and young people with literacy difficulties.

Keynote speaker, Jonathan Solity, a leading researcher and practitioner in the field of reading and spelling will discuss his latest research findings as well as sharing with us his breadth of knowledge and experience in this area.

The day will provide you with most effective interventions to develop reading skills and what really works in the classroom with regards to supporting access to the curriculum, when reading and writing is a problem for learners.

Practical workshops will encourage discussion and creation of new ideas, as well as the chance to network and reflect. You will leave the conference feeling inspired with a range of new ideas and practical tools to implement in your schools, designed to improve outcomes for pupils with literacy difficulties.

Who Should Attend?

Professionals with an interest and/or a role in supporting the development of literacy skills. Early Years, Primary, Secondary and Special School settings: Headteachers, Educational Psychologists, Literacy Co-ordinators, Teachers, SENCO's and Learning Support Staff

“Inspirational, very informative, rooted in research and full of practical ideas”

Delegate feedback from our previous Literacy Conference

Key Reasons to Attend
